Gene (and Joe):

So, I was listening to a broadcast podcast from this "5dradio" outfit, and they were calling themselves Experts and Computer Builders with many years of experience. And chasing the bad Guys. They say they have this Saturday morning show called Computer Corner. I was listening to the back and forths and heard many warnings about trusting people you do not know. Then, along comes this "Song and Dance" about having to rebuild both hardware and software in order to keep this show on the air. And they said that they do not get paid.

Then Gene comes out with this claim that the makeover is going to be expensive and that a sucker named George had given them money. Boy, can you believe it? Here are these guys saying "Do not fall for Scams and Hustlers looking for money from the unsuspecting public" And he turn rights around and come up with this gimmick to fool Mr. You and Mr. Me. I bet they were working for ISIS, or maybe the Russian guy Kaspersky. For all I know, this Gene guy may be trying to raise cash for something wild and crazy, like, oh, I don't know, maybe a Roller Skating Rink.

WELL I NEVER!!!.

In all seriousness, Gene, you know I have been a faithful listener since the very beginning when you were on Wednesday night from WCOJ. You have "Saved My Bacon" may times and the weekly broadcast has just become part of my PC/Droid Phone/Ipads/Tablets life. Thank you.

I hope this donation will find a useful purpose, and helps keep the show going for a long time.

and I was listening to a broadcast podcast from this "show" and they were calling themselves "Experts and Commentators" with every year of experience. And calling the bad (Guy?) that they had in the studio morning show called "Commentary Corner" I was listening to the bad (Guy?)
and they were talking about trusting people you do not know. Then along comes this "show"
"show" about trusting people both hardware and software in order to keep the show on the air.
I don't think they do a good job.

Then Gens comes out with this claim that the machine is going to be expensive and that it will named George and that it is from Europe. They say you believe it's here and these guys say it's not here for reasons in I think looking for things from the newspaper article. And he has rights around and come up with the standard to fool Mr. You had said. And I bet they were working for IBM, or maybe the Russian guy, Kaspersky. For all I know this Gens guy may be trying to raise cash for something wild and crazy like, oh I don't know, maybe a roller skated rink.

to all seriousness, I don't know. I have been a faithful listener since the very beginning when you were on Webster's right from NYC. You have "saved" my "Barn" and "Linn" and the weekly podcast and has just become part of my Podcast Podcast Podcast Podcast. Thank you.

I hope this donation will find a useful purpose, and helps keep the show going for a long time.
